

The Wodehouse Society (TWS) is a national literary society devoted to the life and works of P. G. Wodehouse. Members gather in two ways: via local chapters and at our biennial conventions.

Chapter meetings are friendly affairs and tend to mix Wodehouse appreciation with browsing and sluicing. Some chapters meet in members' homes while others meet at restaurants. One chapter, The Fourth Dimension, is entirely virtual, with all meetings held via Zoom. Visit wodehouse.org to see if there is a TWS chapter near you.

Every two years, TWS holds a convention in a different part of North America. Members attend from all over the world. See our website to learn the location of our next international gathering.

What links our members throughout the year is our quarterly journal, Plum Lines. Wodehouse.org contains an archive of past issues, with all but the last three years' worth free to view so you can get an idea of what we're all about.

There is no surer foundation for a beautiful friendship than a mutual taste in literature.
"Strychnine in the Soup"

At the age of eleven or thereabouts women acquire a poise and an ability to handle difficult situations which a man, if he is lucky, manages to achieve somewhere in the later seventies.

Uneasy Money

As Shakespeare says, if you're going to do a thing you might as well pop right at it and get it over.
Very Good, Jeeves

At this moment, the laurel bush, which had hitherto not spoken, said "Psst!"
